Our Original Prices are equal to others' Sale Prices. One call at THE CORNER STORE always convinces the buyer that BRISCO'S prices are good, honest, workman's prices. We do not run sales, as we buy for cash and give our customers the advantage of our close buying, which gives us the very satisfactory result of having hard times trying to get enough goods, and not as others who seem to always have hard times trying to unload what they have had on their shelves for months.

CHARITABLE INSTITUTION

Woman, with Two Grown-Up Sons, Receives Financial Aid From Town Council.

A CHIEF OF POLICE IS WANTED.

Four Important By-Laws Given Their First Reading—Fire Chief Is Appointed.

The regular weekly meeting of the Blairmore council was held in the council chamber on Monday evening last. The mayor and all the councillors were present.

About the first business to engage the attention of the council was that of the waterworks. It was finally moved by Councillor McLeod and seconded by Councillor Chestnut that the Water Works committee interview Mr. W. J. Budd and ascertain from him at what figure he would be willing to turn over to the town of Blairmore the water works in their present condition. The town to withhold five thousand dollars ($5,000) of whatever price Mr. Budd would agree on, until such time as the work already done is completed as per plans, specifications and original contract. That the Water Works committee also negotiate with Mr. Budd and see whether he would enter into a new contract in regard to the water system; the town to advance a certain sum of money on the work already done, he (Mr. Budd) to complete the work and at the completion of same the town to pay Mr. Budd the balance of the money due him carried.

It was moved by Councillor Farmer and seconded by Councillor Chestnut that W. A. Henderson & Company be instructed to install a complete and up-to-date book-keeping system as soon as possible for the use of the town council carried. The following bills were then read and ordered paid: Rocky Mountain Cement Co., for light, $643.40; Bartlett & Barrett, for printing, $32.80; Dawson & Green, for ballot boxes, $6; A. Malpham, for shovelling snow, $2.50; C. Hiscocks & Co., for supplies, $1.20.

It was moved by Councillor McLeod and seconded by Councillor Sinclair that the town solicitor be instructed to secure if possible the total expense incurred by the town towards the support of C. S. Stewart and Mrs. Mary Burns—carried.

At this juncture there was a halt in the proceedings. Some of the councillors did not think it was right for the town policeman were read. But by a majority vote of the council it was decided to advertise for more applications, the salary of that official to be $100 per month, duties to commence on the first of the year.

James Burrows was appointed fire chief with an annuity of $100.

"Peace--Perfect Peace"

But Just Deserts Handed Out to Some Agitators Who Are Given to Understand that Their Rash Acts Will Not Be borne With Impunity.

Several thousand miners returned to work at the coal mines throughout this district on Monday morning last. Peace once again reigns in the coal camp and everybody is glad that the strike which commenced on March 31st, last, has reached a termination.

We understand that a few workmen have been refused work at the mines because of their disagreeable conduct and the unjust tactics which they so prominently displayed during the strike. The conduct of some local union officials during the past few months have at times become unbearable to those who have some regard for justice and good citizenship, and the vocal chords of the latter class will vibrate in glad unison in praise to the employers for taking such actions as will force those trouble breeders to seek employment elsewhere when their paces may become mended by long beating.

There are, however, in the ranks of the United Mine Workers of America and right in our own "level" some good and refined gentlemen—the kind that go to make ideal citizens—who believe that right hurts no man. We wish there were more of such level-headed men connected with the affairs of District 18 of U. M. W. of A.

We long for the dawning of that better day when the tyrannical efforts of the few laws who now inflict their presence upon the organization meant to benefit and protect the miners, will disappear like chaff before the wind and those instigators be made to reap their reward behind barred windows and bolted doors or, better still, transported to some inauspicious and isolated island to serve a term of severe servitude. There may not be any millennium even then but all concerned would surely witness a decidedly better state of affairs.

The following bills were then read and ordered paid: Rocky Mountain Cement Co., for light, $643.40; Bartlett & Barrett, for printing, $32.80; Dawson & Green, for ballot boxes, $6; A. Malpham, for shovelling snow, $2.50; C. Hiscocks & Co., for supplies, $1.20.

policeman were read. But by a majority vote of the council it was decided to advertise for more applications, the salary of that official to be $100 per month, duties to commence on the first of the year.

CONFESSES IN MURDER CASE

M. Jasbee Confesses to His Part of the Crime in the Frank Murder Case.

SAYS EBERT DID THE SHOOTING.

Committed Several Thefts—Both Are at Macleod Awaiting Their Trial.

The following information regarding the trial of the two Polanders who are accused of committing a murder at Frank, on April 12th, 1908, and who are now incarcerated in the jail at Macleod, is taken from the Lethbridge Herald:

M. Jasbee, who is now awaiting his trial on the charge of being an accomplice to the crime of murder in which Constable Wilmott of the R. N. W. M. P. lost his life at Frank in the spring of 1908, has made a full confession of his part of the crime to Supt. Primrose, of the Mounted Police at Macleod. He gave his reason for not telling of the crime before that he was afraid of being shot by someone who was mixed up in the crime, stating that he had been shot at from behind since the date of the murder.

He hid at one time worked in the Bellance mine at Taber, but the mine closed down, and he was left without money. He sold his horse and buggy for $100 and went to Frank, where he had heard there was work, and there he claims he met Jakubski, who is still at large, and Ebert. As there was no work there they supported themselves by petty thefts. Then one night they went out toward the depot, Ebert taking Jasbee's shotgun. They were scared from there, and then went to P. Burns butcher shop, when the same person again scared them. He went around the building one way and Ebert the other, but not seeing anything he started for home, but had gone far when he heard a shot. Ebert came out and told him some one had asked, "What are you doing here," flashing a revolver at the same time. Ebert had fired. That was all Jasbee said he knew of the crime.

Probably Frozen to Death

In all likelihood Abraham Mushfelt, who left his home at the South Fork, on the 11th inst., to go shooting nearby, has fallen a victim to the cold weather and blinding snow storm which prevailed that evening.

Mr. Mushfelt, who had been living on George Jackson's homestead for over a year, on Saturday afternoon, 11th inst., took his gun and went in search of game promising his wife and son that he would return home in the evening. When night came on and Mr. Mushfelt had not returned, a search party was organized and efforts made to locate the hunter but no trace of him could be found. Since then numerous search parties have traversed the hills but all efforts to locate the lost man have proved futile.

FIRE AT BELLEVUE

Burnett and Lang's Big General Store Visited by a Severe

Conflagration.

Early on Sunday morning, last several of the citizens of Bellevue were awakened by the cry of "fire" and were called upon to arise from their warm beds and turn out into the intense cold atmosphere to try to save the store, occupied by Burnett and Lang, from complete destruction.

It was about 5 a.m. when a resident of Hillcrest, driving by, noticed that the building was on fire and promptly carried the alarm to the Bellevue hotel where the Burnett Brothers, who are in charge of the business, and other lumbering guests were summoned to turn out. The hose reel belonging to the West Canadian Canadian Collieries was commissioned and a large quantity of snow was used to extinguish the blaze which was soon put under control, but not before the large dry goods stock was completely damaged with smoke and water.

The fire probably originated from an oil stove in the basement. A large shipment of fruit which had just arrived was utterly destroyed and everything on the ground floor, including the wood work and fixtures, was badly scorched. The loss is well covered by insurance.

Death of J. W. Moulton

Word was received by Mrs. J. M. Easterbrook, at Cowley, last week, of the rather sudden death of her father, Mr. J. W. Moulton, which event took place at Boston, Mass. Moulton, accompanied by Mrs. Moulton, were en route from St. John's, Nfld., to San Francisco, Cal., where they had hoped to spend their declining days with their youngest son, who has resided there for several years and at whose request the aged couple decided to undertake the journey. Having four daughters at Boston, some of whom had not seen for years, they decided to break their journey by buying off shore for a few weeks. Shortly after their arrival there, Mr. Moulton became the victim of a paralytic stroke and after only a few days the angel of death visited the bedside and a life, that was ever full of hope and broad intellect was snatched away in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends. News of his death was at once sent to his daughter at St. John's, Nfld., his sons at Vancouver, San Francisco, and his eldest daughter, Mrs. Easterbrook, at Cowley, Alta. Mrs. Easterbrook, who has been in the West about seven years, was shocked on receipt of the sad intelligence, for she had been daily expecting her parents to visit them at Cowley while enroute, and to there take another rest from the journey. Miss Mabel Moulton, youngest daughter of the deceased, had just graduated as a nurse from the Boston hospital, and intended coming west as far as Calgary with her parents, but on the day they proposed to leave Boston, she had to witness the still remains of her father. Deceased had reached his seventieth birthday, and up to the present year had always retained a robust constitution. To the bereaved relatives we extend our sympathy. —Com.

The Good Roads convention held in New Westminster, B.C., recently, was the most important step ever taken in connection with the Good Road movement in Canada. Before the convention adjourned the Canadian Highway Association had been formed, its object being to secure the building of a first-class road from Halifax, N.S., to Alberta, B.C., and also to assist in the extension of the Pacific Highway, which now runs from Tia Juana, Mexico, to Vancouver, B.C., the plan being to eventually make Dawson the northern terminus of this road.

Over a hundred delegates from all parts of Canada and the American Pacific coast were in attendance, including some of the most prominent advocates of good roads in the continent.

Hon. Thomas Taylor, minister of public works for British Columbia, in the course of a speech replete with facts and figures bearing on road improvement and extension, made the important announcement that Federal assistance towards the construction of main roads in British Columbia was assured. On behalf of the provincial government he promised a vigorous pursuance of the Better Roads policy with which his name had been associated.

A public meeting is being arranged for in the near future to discuss plans for making Bellevue an incorporated village.

A committee appointed by the local union are discussing plans for a public memorial of December 9th as a memorial to the men who lost their lives in the explosion in Bellevue mine on that date last year.

The arrival in the camp at noon on Monday of Clem Stubbs, vice-president of District 18 of U. M. W. of A., with news that a settlement of the strike had been reached at the Frank conference occasioned much comment, and now everybody is wearing the pleasant smile that betokens better times.

"I am pleased to recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as the best thing I know of and the safest remedy for coughs, colds and bronchial trouble," writes Mrs. L. B. Arnold of Denver. "We have used it repeatedly, and it has never failed to give relief." For sale by All Dealers.

HE COULD NOT SLEEP AT NIGHTS
TILL HE FOUND RELIEF IN DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Fred. Swanson, of Saskatchewan, sends a message of cheer to those who feel the weariness and discouragement that comes from broken rest:

Macklin, Sask.—(Special)—Those who sleepless nights and get up in the middle of the night and discouraged will find renewed hope the statement made by Fred Swanson of this place. He could not get along until he found the cause. It was Kidney trouble. He discovered this cure. It is Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"Mrs. Swanson says in an interview regarding his case, 'I was troubled with my kidneys for over a year, so had that I could not sleep at night. Then I took Dodd's Kidney Pills I found great relief. Four boxes removed all my pain and now I sleep well and I am as strong in my kidneys as ever.'

If the Kidneys are wrong the blood becomes clogged with impurities and natural rest is an impossibility. Kidneys must move the bad blood, new life all over the body and that delightful rest that is the sweetest thing in life. Dodd's Kidney Pills always make strong, healthy Kidneys.

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than other men or women in the country. These secrets are not mere stories of the day, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been helped is due to the fact that they were cured by the fact that 99 per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce or his staff, have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record is extended to include the secret cases of 10,000 women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of special physicians to treat women's secrets.

Every sick woman may consult us by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are sealed, mailed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, upon them. Write without fear as without fee to the Women's Sanitary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, 660 Main Street, Buffalo, N.Y.

FIGURES OF IMMIGRATION

Department at Ottawa Explains How They Are Charged

An answer to the charge that a loose system of immigration is responsible for the big discrepancy between the total number of immigrants and the 1,000,000 estimate, is made by the immigration branch of the Department of the Interior. First of all it is impossible to estimate the total population of the country, the immigration branch that: "Our figures are not open to fair criticism until there is handed out by the Census Bureau the figures for the total population at the birth of the seven million odd who have been counted, the immigration count made at ocean posts and points beyond the Canadian frontier boundary, the latter case by officers going through the trains."

At ocean posts the manifests of the number of passengers are furnished by the steamship company. These manifests are checked by immigration officers and only those entering Canada for the first time are included.

That they intend to stay in Canada are counted as immigrants, either at the ocean ports or at the land boundary. No record is ever kept of the number of those declaring their intention of remaining in Canada and who cross the border into the United States.

United States immigration returns for the last decade places the total immigration from Canada at 260,000.

In 1897 there were 1,187,685 passengers entered Canada at ocean ports, of whom 1,234,698 were counted as immigrants. In the general immigration report of 1898, Canada was placed at 597,924, and in 1898 at 609,318, although the immigration figures for the year showed 539,641. In the past two years the arrivals totalled 886,477. In 1898 the immigrating population was 1,041, census totalled 646,671.

According to the immigration department a large number of Italians, who come into Canada, do not stay, but go back to Italy after obtaining a residence permit.

On the arrival of the Italian Hindus, who entered Canada 3,600 went to the United States. In the case of Chinamen, Canada imposes a stamp duty which is a number of times the United States' goes the Chinamen.

It is believed by the officials that during the past five years the increase in population is 32 per cent. to 35 per cent. which is really greater increase than has been known.

Out of Fashion

For exactly three weeks she had been the toast of the winter club, and was envious that every one should know it. She footed her way along the links with a bag full of shining ribbons of all colors, and was a picture of beauty, and whenever she was invited out to tea she turned the conversation to golf, and interlarded it profusely with such words as "Golf," "Golfer," "Styline," "Diyot," and so on.

At last a nice young man inquired after her handicap, adding: "What is the handicap of the ladies of your club have handicaps?"

For a moment she was nonplussed, but only for a moment.

"I am a golfer glibly, 'don't you know that caps are out of fashion, however handly they may be? Besides we all prefer to go round bare-headed."

For a moment she was nonplussed, but only for a moment.

Some editorial matter is crowded out of this week's issue.

Every taxpayer of Blairmore should attend the council meetings and become interested in the proceedings. You elected the councillors to handle the affairs of your town. Then why not see that they do it in a right way and warn them against useless expenditure of monies for officials' salaries, etc.

Will Visit Europe

Mr. W. Simpson, of Frank, leaves on Friday evening on an extended trip to Europe and will be away for several months. His many friends wish him a safe and pleasant journey.

Latest Picture of Borden

This is the season to subscribe for a newspaper, or to renew, if already a subscriber. Our paper is already recognized as good as any and better than many. Why not take it? It represents the welfare and progress of the community and district with which it is identified, and is, apart from its local value, an all-round up-to-date newspaper.

The recent change of government has made the Hon. Mr. Borden the central figure of our Canadian public life. Many would like a good picture of him. We can supply one FREE. We will send to anyone our paper for a year, and The Weekly Mail and Empire (the regular rate of which is $1.00 per year) for the same period, the two together, to include free picture of the new Canadian Premier, for the small sum of $2.50.

The Borden picture is on fine paper suitable for framing, in photo tint, 18 x 24 inches, and in itself as a work of art, easily worth the price of a year's subscription to either paper. Send all orders to the office of Bartlett & Barrett, Blairmore.

An Instructor In Painting

A Tale of Orr's Island

By TOM F. BROWN

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

During the summer of 18—Constance Phillips, an art student, chose the coast of Maine for a field in which to paint pictures. There is an island on that coast which has been made prominent among its neighbors by a celebrated authoress, who located one of her stories there. Harriet Beecher Stowe's "Pearl of Orr's Island" has been read by millions since those days, with at least the name of the locality.

Miss Phillips, being alone, stopped at a small hotel near the house in which Mrs. Stowe wrote her story. In the evening after breakfast she would take up her artist's palette and brush and start out in search of a scene to transfer to canvas. But she found nothing of the marine order that pleased her more than the view looking eastward from the lower end of the island. Accordingly, she had found herself up above a rocky shore, looking across a strip of Casco Bay. There she set up her easel and, embracing in her subject a bit of the rocks and a bit of the ocean, began her work.

Constance had painted all the morning, but was unfortunately able to transfer to canvas what she saw was not of a high order. Like many aspirants for success in art, she felt it, but was unable to express it. What she had placed on the canvas disappointed her. She was thinking of her work hopefully when she heard a sharp cry coming, saw a man descending through the wild grass and weeds. As he passed her he lifted his cap and, casting a glance at her picture, paused, looking at it from its subject.

"You have seen an admirable teacher," said the man. "I am an admirer teacher. Last evening I was disposed to throw my work into the fire. This morning I am very well satisfied with it."

"Perhaps it is because you see it through rested eyes."

Constance took her picture down to the post office, had occupied herself before and began her day's work. She was again disappointed. It seemed her when noon came that her picture looked much as it had done the day before. She carried it up to the post office again. The man was there, waiting for her coming and went out to meet her.

"I fear that I have spoiled it," she said to him. "This morning it was fine; now it is worse than it was yesterday."

"Put it away from you again," he said, "until tomorrow morning."

"I will leave it with you till tomorrow morning if you will kindly keep it, but I know that during the day I have injured it than improved it. I am heartbroken over it."

Growing confident: "I am very poor," she said, "but I can earn enough to make my living in this way. If the more work I put on a picture the better it is, what chance is there for me?"

"We must all meet disappointment," he replied, "but we are in art, and art is a bird that can rest that winds us, and when we are refreshed we take hold again, with renewed vigor."

In the morning she found her picture again set up in an advantageous light, and again her dissatisfaction with it of the day before was changed to comfort.

The other day Constance worked on her picture, every morning comforted by its appearing to her to be improved from what it was the day before, every noon fearful lest she had lost sight of what she had gained. The stronger up her master's words, the more he called it by which objects were brought to their relative position and striking effects produced. One thing she knew—altogether, the picture was really growing into something beautiful. She believed that what she was doing was due entirely to a subtle influence her instructor exerted over her.

During this time the summer was fading into autumn. The water and the sky took on a cold hue, and the colors remained dim and hazy, and became to return to their permanent homes. Constance finished her painting and was delighted with it. She showed it to a friend, and he studied it carefully.

"Are you a teacher of art?" she asked.

"I have taught art, but I do not teach now. I am interested at present in regaining my physical strength, which is somewhat run down."

Constance noticed that he was pale and thin. His eyes, which were large and dark, were half closed, and seemed more so in his invalid condition. She thanked him for his suggestion, and, removing her canvas, folded her easel and her stool, put her palette and paint in her box and was starting away when the stranger said:

"Leave you to carry those things far?"

"To the village, about a mile up the island."

"Do you come back to paint this afternoon?"

"I expect to."

"There is no necessity that you should bring them both ways. I have a shack on the crest, between here and the road, and you can leave them there."

That would indeed be a saving of labor.

He took up a part of her belongings while she carried the rest, and they walked together up a little path to one of those summer cottages containing only beds, chairs and cheap tableware which city folk regard as good for a week in summer or for "the season." There was a broad porch on three sides of it, and its occupant, setting down the artist's materials on the porch, said:

"They may remain here till you return this afternoon, and if you don't come again today I will take them inside and keep them for you till you need them."

"You are very kind," Constance replied. "Do you have time alone?"

"I am almost empty. I go back to the city early next morning."

"I will relieve you of my belongings about 3 o'clock this afternoon."

"If it is not necessary that you work all day I would advise you not to do so."

"Why?"
"Well—he looked up at the sky for a reason and found one—"In the morning we are fresh and can do our best work. Besides, when we have just finished a day's work we are liable to another undercurrent. That is, when you leave what you have done this morning without looking at it till tomorrow you will be able to put a much better estimate upon it than now, just after you have done it."

"And if I leave it here, I can't see it, can I?"

"No, you can't. And in the morning when you are fresh you will know just what you require. You see, the course I follow is beneficial in more ways than one."

Constance left him and, striking a dismally road through the pines, walked away toward Hallowell village. After dinner instead of going back to her work she took a stick and later a tent and set out in search of oil—she is to continue to paint.

The next morning was clear and crisp. Constance walked to the cottage where she had left her belongings and, approaching, saw her easel standing upright, the canvas tilted back resting on it. She was far from pleased with what she had done that she had been the day before. Just then the stranger came out, and said to him:

"Last evening I was an admirable teacher. Last evening I was disposed to throw my work into the fire. This morning I am very well satisfied with it."

"Perhaps it is because you see it through rested eyes."

Constance took her picture down to the post office, had occupied herself before and began her day's work. She was again disappointed. "I will leave it with you till tomorrow morning if you will kindly keep it, but I know that during the day I have injured it than improved it. I am heartbroken over it."

"It is there and not nearby as dead as he thought. His first finger went into the reptile's mouth clear to the knuckle, and instantly those jaws with the long, sharp, dagger-like teeth closed around his hand. He tried to pull his left hand free, but he managed to get his right hand into the snake's mouth, and then cut the saddle strings and then had to dissect the head and jaws to get his finger from their grip."

"Vail then spurred his horse into Borson and found an engine in the yard, and the engine was in the middle of the telegraph wires, with the division apparatus and Tucson took place, and in a few moments he was on the engine and racing over the road for Tucson, where an eminent surgeon resided at that time. Vail reached death's door for two months, and then, larger today in size and shrivelled up from the effect of the bite."

"We must all meet disappointment," he replied, "but we are in art, and art is a bird that can rest that winds us, and when we are refreshed we take hold again, with renewed vigor."

GILA MONSTERS.

Their Site Is Sometimes Fatal and Always Dangerous.

In a recent issue of the Scientific American an article appeared describing the Gila monster. The statement was made in the article that scientists had questioned whether its bite was fatally poisonous, as has been supposed. W. E. Barnes, of Las Vegas, N. M., claims to know of two cases, in one of which death resulted. Mr. Barnes writes as follows:

"The first man was in Tombstone, Ariz. The Gila was tied by the leg in a saloon as a curio, and a drunken gambler ran up and struck it. He carelessly stuck his first two fingers into its mouth, which immediately closed down on them and could not be released until the reptile's head was cut off, and the jaws came apart. Barnes was in terrible agony for almost two days, and in spite of all efforts to save him.

"The second case was in the fall of 1888. Walter Vail started from the ranches near Tombstone, Ariz., to ride into the mountains. A short distance from the ranch a monster was struggling dragging its way across the road. Thinking to take it in for a friend, he got down and killed it, or at least he tried to. The creature bit him, and he died.

Wm. H. West's Big Jubilee Minstrels

An evening of laughter, mirth, merriment and pleasure will be at the Blairmore opera house, on Wednesday next, November 29th, when Wm. H. West's Big White Jubilee Minstrels will appear. This is the first time that this renowned minstrel company, band and orchestra, have ever performed in this section of the country, and is by far the very best of the many minstrel companies on tour; for years the West Minstrels have set the pace and the others have tried in vain to imitate.

For this tour, which is under the direction of the well known managers, Boyle Woolfolk and William Cranston; everything is new throughout—wardrobe, scenic equipment, etc.

More funny comedians, more splendid singers, more dancers, etc. than have ever before been seen in The Pass.

Don't forget the date and make your seat reservations now for an evening of pleasure you will long remember.
